Subject: Chronicle Commentary

To my Colleagues in Science & Math,
...and all interested friends:

My initial approach to The Chronicle of Higher Education a couple weeks ago was with a 1,200-word Op-ed piece which (I continue to think) places the entire Woodrow Wilson controversy into its proper perspective. The Editors agreed to publish it, along with a companion news article.

So I was a bit disappointed when the publication of the news article, which seemed overly-personal to me, preceded the publication of my op-ed Commentary. In any case, my Commentary ultimately appeared online yesterday evening, and can now be read (open access) here:
<http://chronicle.com/article/Why-I-m-Sticking-to-My/235874>

I understand that both pieces will appear together in the old-fashioned paper edition of The Chronicle hitting the newsstands next week.

We'll keep you posted,
Rob
